Dear Dr. Hashim:

We express our appreciation to all of the donors that provided support for the Ninth International Conference on Second Messengers and Phosphoproteins that was held at Vanderbilt University Medical Center from October 27 through November 1, 1995. More than 1200 scientists from thirty-four countries participated in the Conference, and the exchange of scientific information was truly impressive. The Distinguished Lectures were presented by our three Nobel laureates, Dr. Stanley Cohen (1986), Dr. Edwin Krebs (1992), and Dr. Alfred Gilman (1994), and the Symposia lectures were delivered by twenty-nine outstanding scientists from around the world. In addition, there were twenty-eight evening workshops that focused on specific areas of interest for the participants, and there were six hundred seventy poster presentations.

A complimentary copy of the Program and Abstract Booklet that was produced for the Conference is enclosed. Again, we sincerely thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Jackie D. Corbin, Ph.D.
